FIGHT UNTIL VICTORY

National Liberty Shall Never Again be Challenged Says British Premier in Anniversary Speech.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
London, Aug. 4.—David Lloyd George, British premier, in the presence of a distinguished gathering, representatives of all parties, which met this afternoon in Queen's Hall to mark the third anniversary of the declaration of war, reiterated the aims for which the country was fighting, and declared that the only condition under which they would consent to a suspension of hostilities with the central powers.

The meeting was under the auspices of the national war aims committee and was probably the greatest patriotic demonstration of the year. The expectation to hear the premier's speech would be a most important one. The Marquis of Crewe, leader of the liberal party in the house of lords, was chosen to preside. He was supported by the archbishop of Canterbury, and one hundred members of parliament. Baron Sonnino, the Italian foreign minister, and Nikola Pashich, the Serbian premier, were invited guests.

Victory Must be Complete.
In the course of his speech Premier Lloyd George said:

"Victory must be so complete that our national liberty never again shall be challenged.

"Russia learned an army without discipline is a mob.
"There are some here who want to set up committees for the British army and direct the conduct of the war. We cannot allow a sectional organization to direct the war or to dictate the terms of peace.

"The nation as a whole made war, and the nation as a whole must make peace."

The premier on opening his address declared that what had happened in Great Britain had not entered the war. He answered this question by saying:

"Europe would have been at the mercy of a cruel military power. Russia would have been disintegrated. France would have been fought. Britain, but might have been overwhelmed. America's peace would have been treated as a scrap of paper. The fact, today is we have checked the ambitions of Germany."

Skeptical of Peace Talk.
The British prime minister said he did not trust the German peace talk.

"Neither the Kaiser nor the chancellor," he declared, "has yet said he would be satisfied with German soil. They talk about peace, but stand over the word restoration. Before we have a peace conference, they must learn to use the word 'restoration.' So far they have not learned even the first letter of the alphabet."

Retake Lost Positions.
London, Aug. 4.—All positions east of Monchy le Preux on the Arras front in France, which were captured by the British on Thursday night, have been retaken by the British according to an official statement issued today by the British war office. On the Belgian front, the British and Belgian forces launched an offensive Tuesday morning, the entire allied troops made further progress east of Kortrijk Caboret.

CHICAGO DRAFT ARMY,
50,000, MARCH TODAY

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Chicago observed National Army Day with a parade of 50,000 men of the first draft through the streets today. They were escorted by the 4,000 reserve officers training at Fort Sheridan.

The parade, led by Col. Nicholson, commander at the fort, was reviewed by Maj. Gen. Barry, commanding general department of the United States army.

Arrangements for the parade were made by the committee which had the big preparedness parade in charge. The committee was composed of representatives of the Advertising Association of Chicago, Aero Club of Illinois, Builders' club, Chicago Association of Commerce, Chicago Board of Trade, Commercial club, City club, Cook County Real Estate Board, Hamilton club, Industrial club, Ironworks club, Illinois Manufacturers' association, National National Security League, Rotary club, Spanish War Veterans, Traffic club, Union League club, Universal Military Training League, University of Chicago and Western Society of Engineers.

LIEGE FINED FOR DISOBEYING ORDER

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Amsterdam, Aug. 4.—According to the Liege, the city of Belgium has been fined 500,000 francs for disobeying the order of the Germans to demolish buildings damaged by fire on the Quatre Pecheurs. Liege, capital of the Walloon district, is the Belgian city which offered such determined resistance to the Germans at the outbreak of the war when they invaded Belgium so as to avoid French troops from Verdun to Beloit, and to thank the French northern and eastern armies.

HOLD DIVORCED WIFE FOR THE MURDER OF FORMER HUSBAND

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
New York, Aug. 4.—Repeated differences over the custody of his son four and a half years old, whom the mother was anxious to take with her on a visit to her own home in Chile, were assigned today as the cause for the murder last night of John Longer Dessaulles by his divorced wife, Mrs. Vincent Brazuriz Dessaulles. Mrs. Dessaulles spent last night in the jail at Mineola, L. I., where she was taken after a brief hearing, which resulted in her being charged with first degree murder.

John Longer Dessaulles first won prominence as quarterback at Yale, and after his graduation carried into popularity among college men into politics, successfully heading two organizations, one during President Wilson's 1912 campaign and the second election for Mayor Mitchell. As a result of his work in 1912, President Wilson appointed Mr. Dessaulles minister to Uruguay, but he declined the honor to engage in real estate business in this city. It was when he was in the city of Arthur Dessaulles of South Bethlehem, Pa.

His father, who was a major on the staff of General Polk of the Confederate army, was one of the witnesses of the shooting last night. Mrs. Dessaulles is twenty-three years old, a member of one of the richest families of South America and a niece of a notable president of Chile. It was recalled today that several months ago, shortly before Mrs. Dessaulles applied to the court for permission to take her son on a visit to Chile, that a message of a few words was delivered to her by a priest, the messenger, the Rev. James Kent Stone, of the Passionist Fatherhood of South America, said that he came more than 4,000 miles to deliver the message, and refused to disclose its contents to the public. The message is said to have been delivered to the priest by the mother of Mrs. Dessaulles, who pledged him to secrecy.

TWO WOMEN DROWNED
LATE LAST EVENING

Mrs. Otto Gruve and Miss Tilda Heinmann, Local Lives When Canoe Capsizes at Beloit.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Beloit, Aug. 4.—Mrs. Otto Gruve, aged twenty-two, and Miss Tilda Heinmann, sixteen, were drowned last evening in the canoe they were in, accompanied by Mr. Gruve and Wesley Voss, aged twenty, of Beloit, who were near the ice house. Details of the drowning have not been received, but the two men who were saved being unable to explain how the accident happened or why they were able to escape death and the women were drowned.

At 11:25 and the police were notified shortly after half past eleven by young Voss, who is in a hysterical condition. The women's bodies were recovered this morning. Mr. and Mrs. Gruve were visiting here, their home being in Indiana. Miss Heinmann is a graduate of the local high school and is very well thought of. The affair is a shock to the community.

SKULL FRACTURED
IN GARAGE MISHAP

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Edgerton, Aug. 4.—Byron Bunting, an automobile repair man, lies in a precarious condition at his home here with a fractured skull, received this morning when the rope holding a machine in the air under which he was working, broke. Bunting's head was caught under the back spring. The machine was just adjusting on the heavy automobile.

Physicians attending him are unable to give any definite statement as to his chances of recovery. Up to a late hour this afternoon he had not lost consciousness.
Chris Tronson, another employee of the garage, heard Bunting's cries for help and came to the latter's assistance, and found him lying on the ground, summoned strength of a giant and lifted the heavy car to release his fellow workman. Tronson suffered severe injury to his back as the result of his efforts.

Two Escape Injury.
Driving a Thompson livery automobile at an excessive speed, west of the city, the motorist, Edward Brown and Frederick Ellingson narrowly escaped serious if not fatal injury when the machine became uncontrollable and turned completely over. Ellingson and alighted in the ditch. Brown was caught beneath the body. Neither were injured to amount to anything.

AMERICAN TANKER
OUTSPEEDS U-BOAT
IN RUNNING FIGHT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
An Atlantic Port, Aug. 4.—An American tanker ship loaded with gasoline was engaged in a running fight with a German submarine on July 10th, when near the French coast, and escaped destruction by superior speed, after a torpedo had been launched and twenty-one shots fired, according to officers of the ship, who arrived here today. The submarine appeared after the wake of the passing torpedo had turned the Americans off the presence of the enemy. From a position several miles astern the bombardment took place, but none of the shots reached a mark. The Americans fired sixteen shots in return, but without result, so far as could be ascertained. The captain asserted that the dangerous chase of the cargo induced him to take flight.

ROUT REAR GUARDS OF TEUTON ARMIES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Petrograd, Aug. 4.—North of Huslatyn on the Russo-Galician front, the Austro-German rear guards yesterday were driven back to their positions on the eastern bank of the river Zbroczka by the Russian war department. Forty-three prisoners were captured. Seven machine guns were captured. Between the rivers Dniester and Pruth and in the Carpathians, the Russian troops are retiring to the eastward.

The Russian war office statement says a battle between Russians and Teutons is raging to the northeast of Kimpolung in southern Bukovina. The Austro-Germans have occupied the town of Dorna Watra.

On Italian Front.
Rome, Aug. 4.—More important offensive actions were taken by the Austro-Hungarians on Thursday and Friday night against the Italian position east of Vertoba and on Montebelluna. The Italian air squadrons last night again bombarded the Austrian arsenal and military works at Pola, the statement said, causing great destruction and big fires.

WHERE TO FILE CLAIMS

Men Seeking Discharge Because of Dependents File Affidavits With Local Board—All Other Cases to Madison.

J. A. Craig of this city who has been a member of the Janesville registration board, was last week appointed a member of District Board No. 1 of the Western District of the State of Wisconsin, with office headquarters in the capitol building at Madison.

The members of the board are: Richard Meyer, Jr., banker, Lancaster; Prof. C. F. Burgess, engineer, Madison; J. C. Gadeney, lawyer and farmer, Arcadia; Dr. W. W. Gill, Madison; and J. A. Craig, manufacturer, Janesville.

Officers appointed were: Richard Meyer, Jr., president of the board and C. F. Burgess, secretary.

There are four other District Boards in the state: Division No. 2, Western District, Eau Claire; Division No. 1, Eastern District, Milwaukee; Division No. 2, Eastern District, Racine; Division No. 3, Eastern District, Oshkosh.

District Board No. 1 has jurisdiction over twenty-one counties. The counties and quota of men to be furnished by each in the first draft are shown below:

Rock, 372; Green, 128; Lafayette, 166; Grant, 222; Iowa, 193; Dane, 375; Jefferson, 30; Columbia, 191; Sauk, 171; Richland, 129; Crawford, 134; Vernon, 120; Adams, 127; Juneau, 120; Monroe, 32; La Crosse, 102; Buffalo, 136; Trempealeau, 157; Jackson, 77; Wood, 36; Portage, 179; City of Madison, 216 and City of La Crosse, 105.

Five days after the date of the twenty-one counties and two cities totals 3,427 men.

Affidavit Instructions.
The District Board handles only claims on appeal and all the exemption claims on grounds of occupation or industry. All other claims are handled by the local draft board.

The applicant files his claims directly with the secretary of the district board, by mail only. In making an industrial or occupational claim, applicant must request on form direct to the division board at Madison. This must reach the Board within five days after receipt of notice of having passed the physical examination.

After you file your claim you have five days in which to prepare your proof. You must file your claim within proper date of mailing. In filing this claim, you are given five more days to prepare proofs in the way of at least three affidavits: one from yourself; one from your employer; one from your neighbor, one from an outside property owner, in no way connected with the business, but must have sufficient knowledge to give proper testimony.

If you are a proprietor of a business and are making claim for exemption, you must file one affidavit for yourself and then must have two others from outside property owners who have sufficient knowledge of your business to give proper testimony.

Information for Affidavits.
Affidavits must state in detail the character of your work; industry you are connected with; where it is located; number of employees; character of the work that you perform; how long engaged in performing such work; any other information that would throw light on the importance of the institution with which you are connected.

An affidavit coming from a farmer of land, crops raised, size of the farm, estimate of the amount of food products, including grains, produced on such farm.

District Board No. 1 of the Western District will hold its first meeting next Wednesday in the capitol building at Madison and will remain in continuous session until the closing of the draft. The board will probably run the course of six or seven weeks.

Members of the District Board are drafted into the service instead of being appointed. They are now character of the work that you perform; how long engaged in performing such work; any other information that would throw light on the importance of the institution with which you are connected.

Mr. Craig is of the opinion that some confusion will result from the differences in time limits in regard to filing of affidavits with the local board and district board. Seven days are allowed to file an affidavit with the local board and only five days to file a like claim with the District Board after you receive notice.

You are allowed ten days to file your affidavit with District Board. Affidavit forms are not furnished as yet, but the District Board will advise what form should be used.

A Few Hints.
Decide what you are going to do. If a claim, what is it going to be? Will you make a claim for exemption because of dependence on an occupation or industrial grounds?

Dependence claims are filed with the local board.

Industrial and occupational claims are filed with the district board. All other claims are filed at the capitol building, Madison, and must be received seven days to make your claim to the local draft board at court house.

EXPLOSION ENTOMBS
TWO HUNDRED MEN IN KENTUCKY MINE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Clay, Ky., Aug. 4.—Two hundred miners were entombed in mine No. 7 of the West Kentucky Coal Company here as a result of an explosion of gas at 7:30 this morning. Three men have been rescued. Smoke is emerging from the mine.

Four Bodies Brought Up.
An official list of the number of men entombed in the mine made at noon today indicated the number to be something less than 175. Forty-six have been brought to the surface alive, together with four bodies in addition that of Charles Wallace, mine foreman at Evansville on Tuesday.

The rescued twenty-four were uninjured, the remainder suffering from burns, none of which were said to be serious. Approximately 175 men were reported to be still imprisoned in the workings. Fire which followed the explosion, raged for several hours and which it is now thought to be extinguished, the presence of "black damp" has made further rescue work impossible pending the arrival of a mine rescue car from Evansville.

Rescue Effort Not Twenty.
Evansville, Ind., Aug. 4.—It was reported this afternoon that all but twenty of the 200 entombed miners in the West Kentucky Coal Company's mine at Clay, Ky., had been brought to the surface; sixteen are known to be dead, three whites and three negroes. Sixteen of the rescued men are badly burned and are being brought to Evansville on a special train.

Mine officials at Clay expressed hope that the remaining twenty men would be rescued with the mine rescue car and crew left here at ten o'clock this morning for Clay.

Some Rescued.
Madisonville, Ky., Aug. 4.—Reports reaching here today from Clay, Ky., said that thirty-one men, all negroes had been rescued, and of them it was said were badly burned.

NEAR FULL QUOTA
FOR HOME GUARDS

Enlistment of Thirteen More Brings
Total Enrollment Up to 83.—
Make Final Appeal.

With the signatures of thirteen more men seeking to have a Home Guard unit organized in this city, it now numbers eighty-three members, but seventeen under the quota of one hundred, necessary to obtain the official recognition of life and property in time of need.

That the signatures have not been made faster than they have been due to last few days' apathy on the part of the community and necessity for such an organization. With the mobilization of the entire national guard, the state and the European front, Wisconsin and its administration is left without military power to suppress riots, or to keep the peace in the time of disaster.

Home Guard is organized and offered to the governor to be used as he may see fit. It is not likely that disorders of so severe a nature will occur, but they must be provided for.

The Home Guard affords an opportunity for all those men who are not in the service to the country. England early recognized the crying need for some such protection, with the result that practically every citizen of some real sacrifice will be entailed in joining the company. Drills will probably be held but once a week, and then probably only for an hour or so in the evening. It goes provide an opportunity, however, for all men to receive valuable military training, which will be of great aid in giving them the knowledge of military tactics which would be of great advantage to men upon entering the national army.

For this reason an especial appeal is made to men who fall within the draft. All those except the few called up for the first examination are all men in the organization, some service in the past, either with the national guard or with the regular army.

With the goal so close, boosters of the unit today started an energetic campaign to round up enough men to proceed with the formal organization, and to make requests for rides and equipment.

The following men are the latest to sign: H. S. Haggart, William McCue, B. H. Rutter, E. H. Mead, Robert R. Conway (five men from the First National Bank), A. Buchholz, George Thompson, E. C. Baumann, John G. Moran, F. H. Palmer, Fred Broege, S. Doran, F. H. Palmer, Fred Broege.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 4.—Indulging in a dream of revolutions, and resisting the draft law, at least half a dozen armed bands of tenant farmers, half breed Indians, and negroes are running rampant throughout five counties in east Central Oklahoma today.

As the disturbed territory is about 100 miles long by 50 miles wide, the topography of the land is rugged and full of thickets, only an estimate can be made of the total number of rioters. Reports placed the number of registers variously at from 500 to 1500.

Authorities following clashes last night declared the situation was well in hand, and the strength of the movement had been broken.

Sheriff's Posse Active.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 4.—At dawn today an organized effort to secure the various armed bands, defying the selective draft, was to be begun by four sheriffs and posses of hundreds of men. The exact number of the supposed half dozen or so groups of rioters or the numerical strength of any band has not been revealed, but it is known that the disorder has spread through Pottawatomie, Hughes, Sequoyia and Pontotoc counties, and that one band numbers at least eighty men. Another is said to contain 400 men.

Predominating among the objectors are said to be members of the working class union having a membership of 300, with a sprinkling of Industrial Workers of the World agitators, and a smaller, apparently local group known as the "Jones family." The motto of the rioters is said to be: "This is a rich man's war, let us fight to the death at home rather than be killed in the trenches."

The first clash between rioters and authorities was reported to have occurred near Ada last night, but a report from there early today said that the rioters had been repulsed, and one band has been sighted. It numbers sixty men.

May Use U. S. Troops.
Washington, Aug. 4.—Federal troops may be sent to Oklahoma and other states to quell anti-draft demonstrations which recently have assumed growing proportions.

Department of Justice officials investigating the situation in the south stated today that all persons resisting the draft law would be hunted down and brought to justice, no matter at what cost.

The possibility of sending federal troops into sections where anti-draft agitators had been busy was discussed today at conferences between officials of Justice and War departments. It is probable that a decision will be made on this subject in the next 24 hours. As the national guard of the country goes under federal control today governors in states where disorders occur, will have to ask federal military authorities for help. Federal civil authorities are, however, that troops will be sent into able to quell disorders.

Officials here think it hardly likely any section until it becomes apparent that the civil authorities are unable to cope with the situation.

The next few days it was thought would determine this. The intention to deal quickly and severely with all persons spreading disorder in the state, and a railroad bridge over Salt Creek between Keweenaw and Maud also burned last night.

Another Bridge Burned.
Muskegon, Okla., Aug. 4.—W. G. Humphrey, general superintendent of the Missouri, Oklahoma and Gulf road, received word this morning that an M. O. and G. bridge near Calvin, eighteen miles south of Muskogee in Hughes county, was burned last night. All cars have been cut, and details were not obtained.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

The most far-reaching messages of the great war are not coming through the spoken or written word of those high in power. The real inspiration for America, the spark that is kindling the sleeping fires of her people's patriotism, burns not in the intellectual generalizations of orators, but in the simple revelations of devotion to duty that come from the Alan Seegers and the Creightons. It is the gift of the power of expressing the depth of feeling which inspires the millions who fight and bleed and die that freedom may not vanish from the earth.

"If it should come to pass that I am called to lay down my life on the altar of freedom, I shall be proud. Mine, that it was your son's privilege to shed a single tear, for it shall not have been in vain."

"The candle has been certainly played a big part in the war. If only the candle had been taken off its stand a year ago so as to have started this spring. Preparations are being made to train United States troops over here, and it will be a great day for me when I shall be able to meet them. Let us pray it won't be far distant. Well, I have been writing quite a time, and hope the censor will be kind enough to pass my letter."

"You might tell the world for me that Sherman made no mistake when he said, 'War is hell,' but he didn't have much of a conception of hell. The awful ruin of the very soil itself which was once fair and fruitful will never admit of another war. The man in the future who talks of the glory of war will be shot on the spot. Or if he just thinks it, he will be destroyed by the wrath of God. The guns whose rumble has increased steadily in three years to a now appalling thunder, will be a warning for all time."

Thus wrote Creighton R. Storey, Jr., from the battle-front in France to his mother in Albany, New York, on June 18th, three short weeks before his father, the Rev. Dr. Creighton R. Storey, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, received a one-line cablegram from the British war office: "Creighton R. Storey, Jr., killed in action June 24." In the letters of this young soldier—his only son—there is expressed an exaltation of spirit, a simplicity of faith and a willingness to make the final sacrifice for the great cause that ranks them among the supreme of the many noble messages this war has furnished to the literature of the world. No other period in history has revealed so rich in the nobility of self-sacrifice as the past three years, and in the hands of this young American, who crossed the sea to fight under the British flag in the greatest cause for which man has ever battled, there breathes the true spirit of the heights of sacrifice to which liberty may call her devoted sons.

These human interest experiences are from a war correspondent of "Leslie's." They are just a fragment of the great volume of similar experiences which will never be written. In this era when history is making so fast that only the most important events are recorded.

The "Alan Seegers" and "Creighton Storeys" make up the rank and file of the great armies and America is just now mobilizing her quota of the same kind of young men. They may not be filled with the same degree of patriotism as the heroes of the past, but they are fully armed upon them that their country is in danger, but they are ready to respond to the call of duty, and their loyalty is beyond question.

When Company M left the city for Camp Douglas, the other morning, a great crowd was at the station to say "good bye," and wish them Godspeed. We have watched the boys drift on the streets and in the parks, but it seemed like a dream and we did not fully realize that they were a part of the nation's great army until they left us for camp, but they are, and they are our part of it.

Company M is a volunteer company composed of young men who stepped out of the ranks of quiet life to join the colors, at a time when it is difficult for many to understand why it is necessary for this country to engage in war.

They are our representatives at the front. We sent them away with a thousand dollars in the company's treasury and the assurance that more would be furnished as needed. At a little banquet given to the officers of the company by the Commercial club, Wednesday noon, the thought was emphasized by a number of speakers that back of this home company was the heart of the home people.

All over the land these experiences are being repeated and the nation is being rapidly transformed from a nation at peace to a nation at war. Mothers are saying "good bye" to their boys, with a prayer on their lips for protection and their safe return. The remnant of the generation which survives the days of civil strife, these experiences are not new, but to the most of us they are so novel that we do not yet fully appreciate them.

The old mother whose eyes may be too dim to read them, still cherishes the little bundle of letters written by her boy at Gettysburg so long ago. The boys of yesterday and the boys of today are very much alike, and the mother's heart never changes.

The boys that were fighting for the freedom of a race, and to preserve the union. The boys of today are contending for the freedom of the world, as well as for the protection of the land we love so well. They will write the same kind of letters home as did the boys of '61, and as the boys are going today, from the fields of conflict across the sea.

We deal in such large figures today, both in men and money, that it is difficult to grasp their significance. An army one million strong in active service, may represent us at the front within a year, but this is only a fragment of our fighting strength, for back of this army is 100,000,000 people all engaged in war.

The brain, the muscle and all the resources of this great country, are consecrated to service at the expense of sacrifice whenever necessary. The boys who go to the front are the nation's heroes, because they may be called upon to make the supreme sacrifice, and next to them are the wives and mothers who patiently wait at home.

America is the world's great granary and storehouse. The spirit of humanity which respects the call of suffering, Belgium and other starvated countries, will be taxed as never before, because we have formed an alliance with the great nation which are contending for the world's freedom and the call of duty is upon us.

Philanthropy is one of the Christian graces, but duty outranks sentiment because it is a sacred obligation. There will be no place for slackers in this home guard of 100,000,000 strong. The service rendered will be a patriotic and loving service, and our boys at the front as well as the nations with whom we are allied, will be cheered and encouraged.

"The man with the hoe" represents the men and women in every channel of industrial life. They are the producers on which so much depends for success in the great struggle upon which we have entered. Loyalty and consecration to service, is just as important in this great industrial army, as it is in the forces at the front.

The men in business will be called upon to contribute to the limit of ability and sacrifice will be the watchword for many months to come. It is an old truism, that the things worth having are the things which cost us something. This is true of every thing worth while.

It may be money, it may be effort, and in the case of war it may be life itself. The test is upon us as a people never before, and when as a nation we are thoroughly aroused to the situation, we will meet it cheerfully and without a murmur. The issue at stake warrants the sacrifice.

The "good-byes" of life are always impressive. They mean that one goes while the other stays, and whether separation means a short journey, or that long pilgrimage from which no traveler returns, it is always harder for the one who remains than for the one who goes.

So we have said "good-bye" to our boys. They have gone out in the vigor of young manhood to test the realities of camp and army life. They will be too busy to be lonesome or homesick, but their absence will be keenly felt in the homes of which they were a part.

When they come back, as God grant they may, we will hardly know them, for army life develops manhood, and the soldier boys of 1917 will stand shoulder to shoulder with the veterans of other lands. God bless them and keep them is the prayer of every heart.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY K. MOULTON

TO THE SUN
Thou fam'd of old, thou well known Orb of Day, heat upon our
That sheddeth heat upon our
That fetherd now a high despotic
And sendeth us in frazzles to our beds;
Through all the day rage freely it you will.
For through the day you are with in your right,
Though all the day we swoon and sweeter, still,
Oh, stay away at night!

What time we seek the couch at close of day,
When we would rest our weak
and wearied bones,
Which we say when we have hit the hay,
Why must we spend the night in pitious moans?
Why must we toss in slumber, fitful slight?
At night we yearn to rest us for a spell,
Altho' it's true you do not shine at night—
And yet you might as well.

Though through the day we are a sorry wreck
And though our gullet is a streaming flue,
Our cellars dripping rags about our neck,
For all the cooling things we sip
or chew,
Yet when at eve your wicked work
is through,
The heat you're turning out all through the day,
Don't let it lie around, please take it, do,
Please take it all away!

Honesty is the best policy, but any insurance agent will tell you different.

Fact.
"And that's the only way to be,"
Says Uncle Anse Dizen.
"The real philosopher is he Who's cheerful when he ain't!"

Smoking.
Smoking is a fine hobby or exercise for one who doesn't care to eat much. There is no better way of cutting down the grocery bill than plenty of smoking and the man who makes it a point to smoke enough through the day will find that the potato, a handful of beans will appease his hunger in the evening.

With food prices high it would be an economy for every member of the family to take up smoking. Pass out a few cigars to the children when they beg for something to eat between meals. The thrifty housewife will find that cigars would be better for the children than a pipe, as they could hardly be taught to care for a pipe properly. To keep a pipe cleaned up and in good trim requires lots of time and attention. The man who goes in for pipe smoking can't expect to grow a garden or keep a neat looking lawn. He will need all his spare time for his pipe, to shake it down and carry out the ashes.

The Rougel.
That was a generous treat last Saturday evening accorded business men of Cassville by Dubuque's Commercial club, a free ride on the steamer G. W. Hill to Guttenberg and return. Your Uncle John found a soul mate, but had to leave her on the boat because she lives in Dubuque and is married.—Cassville (Wis.) Index.

BEST WAY TO DRY FRUIT, VEGETABLES IS BY SUN PROCESS

Washington, Aug. 4.—There's a lot of complicated and expensive machinery for fruit and vegetable drying, but Uncle Sam says you don't need to get that worried. There are cheap and effective methods that do just as well.

Sun drying is about the cheapest and most effective method for housewives practicing a little war economy at home. In its simplest form sun drying consists of simply spreading the sliced or chopped food on sheets of clean paper or if it sticks, on pieces of old, though clean, muslin, weighted down with stones.

Choose bright, hot, sunny days for this. See that no rain or dew wets the product, throw a mosquito bar over it to keep off flies and insects.

Stir the slices and turn them over once or twice a day. Take out the thin ones, which dry first.

You must be particularly careful about flies and insects. If they lay their eggs in the drying product they will hatch later and muddle your dried foods, rendering them unfit for the table.

If you can afford trays, use them. Then you can stack the trays at night and cover them with old cloth, canvas or roofing paper during wet weather or at night.

Don't put your trays directly on the ground. You can make a little tier tray, if you have a handy man around the house to hang over the kitchen stove and dry your things that way. It will utilize all the hot air given off by any kind of a stove.

Still another home-made drier is the cookstove oven. Bits of food, especially left-overs, can be dried on plates in a very slow oven in connection with other cooking or on the back of the cookstove and preserved for winter use.

If the oven is very warm the door may be left ajar and the temperature of the oven often noted. You can also use small galvanized iron trays in the oven. These are such small driers on the market.

Then there's the electric fan. If you use one, fruits and vegetables in long trays, about 3x1 feet and stacked in two tiers, and to end before the fan, can be dried within 24 hours.

Sliced string beans and shredded sweet potatoes will dry before a fan running at moderate speed. Bits of the fan will about one-fourth of a cent an hour in electricity.

Place the fan close to the stack and do not fill them so full that the air can't pass freely all around them. The big advantage of the fan method is that the food keeps cool all the time, thus tending to retain the color and prevent spoilage.

AMERICAN MISSION TO RUSSIA RETURNS

A Pacific Port, Aug. 4.—The American mission to Russia, headed by Elihu Root, landed here last night. No official statement on the work of the mission in Russia could be obtained. Mr. Root, acting as spokesman, declared that he had nothing to say beyond the fact that the party had been hospitably received in every Russian city that they had visited.

Out of the Russian revolution will be evolved a stable government, according to James Duncan, vice president of the American Federation of Labor. Its establishment is retarded, he declared, by the radical so-called reformers of the character of industrial workers of the world, who have returned to Russia after having lived while in America.

Charles Edward Russell declared that the task of the new Russian government is to break the German influence and the ceaseless activities of the German propagandists.

"Most of the trouble, however, has been caused by Russians naturally as Americans, who have returned to Russia since the outbreak of the revolution," he said, and added that Russians from the United States spread the report throughout the country that American had entered the war from sordid reasons.

ALLOW FEW EXCUSES IN SELECTIVE DRAFT

Milwaukee, Wis., August 4.—No one will be excused from the selective draft for the good of certain businesses or industries, and no industry or department of public service that is essential will be crippled, according to Dr. Philip A. Fox, chief examiner for the first district. Dr. Fox said: "Firemen, patrolmen, letter carriers, and men in such lines are not entitled to exemption because of their occupations. They are not trained men in the real sense of the word."

Every employer must train and break in his help much in the same manner as heads of these departments do. Therefore, why should we excuse them if they are physically fit? It is not the city or the Milwaukee branch of the federal service that are to be considered in this instance, but the United States government, which has a mighty serious war on its hands."

SAMMY AND TOMMY SHARE JOB OF GUARDING AN INTERNATIONAL BRIDGE

The job of guarding the international bridge at Niagara Falls between America and Canada is shared by American and English soldiers. Mr. Vexal (angrily)—I hate a woman who always contradicts everything a man says. If I don't I'm an idiot. Mrs. Vexal (sweetly)—Well, dear, I'll turn over a new leaf and commence right now by not contradicting you.

"This fashion article telling 'how to trim a hat for the price of the frame' is all well enough as far as it goes," remarked Mrs. Smallmeans. "But what I would really like to know is 'how to trim a husband for the price of a hat.'"

ANNOUNCEMENT TO THE PUBLIC

Starting NEXT MONDAY, AUGUST 6th, we are going to adopt a new system of selling GROCERIES in Janesville. We are going to use what is commonly known as the "Cash and Carry Plan."

Under this new system it will be possible for us to sell the same high-grade Groceries that we now handle at a very material reduction in the present prices.

Here is our plan:

THE PLAN:

1. Every article in our store will be plainly marked at lowest cash price. This price is for those of our customers who come to the store, pay cash for the articles and carry them home.

2. For those who desire we have an efficient delivery system. Deliveries will leave our store promptly at 7:30, 8:45 and 10:30 a. m. and 2:30 and 4:30 p. m. For this service we will make the nominal charge of 5 cents for each order.

3. We will cheerfully extend credit to anyone who is entitled to it, and for this service we will make the charge of 1 cent for each dollar or fraction thereof. In other words, under the new plan you will pay for just what you get.

This new system is not an experiment. It has been tried out in the leading stores in many other towns, and in every instance it has been a great success. We have made a thorough investigation of the plan, making trips to other towns and studying all the details, and when we saw how enthusiastically other people had adopted it we knew it was just the thing for Janesville.

Let us show you how it works out by comparing the following prices, the old and the new.

First, we will compare a list of prices to the consumer who comes to store, pays cash for the articles and takes them away with him.

	Old Price	New Price
Argo Starch	$.06	$.05
Monarch Catsup	.20	.17
One pound best Jap Tea	.50	.45
Pettijohn Breakfast Food	.20	.18
One pound Coffee	.25	.22
	$1.21	$1.07

Second, we will show prices to the customer who asks delivery but pays for the goods at the store or has them sent C. O. D.

RED CROSS BRANCH WAS ORGANIZED AT AVALON LAST NIGHT

Organization of a branch chapter of the Red Cross society was effected at Avalon last evening at a well attended meeting in the school house. Over one hundred and fifty people have signed up for annual membership, and plans for carrying on the work of the society are arousing the interest of many of the ladies of the community.
Mrs. Geo. Scott was named president of the branch. Mrs. William L. Larson, secretary, and N. W. Bunker, treasurer. A good deal of money was collected in the form of dues at the meeting. L. A. Markham and Mrs. William F. Bosworth of Janesville attended the meeting, outlining the mission of the Red Cross.
Following the meeting those present listened to a talk on school consolidation by W. E. Larson, state inspector of public schools. Representatives of all the school districts in the vicinity were present and much favorable discussion of plans for consolidation in that section was held. It is hoped that further meetings on school consolidation will follow. Mr. Larson is in company with O. D. Antisdel, county school superintendent, will conduct a similar meeting at Clinton this evening.

JANESVILLE CONCERN MAKING NEW PRODUCT

WISCONSIN CARRIAGE COMPANY, NOW JANESVILLE PRODUCTS COMPANY—MAKES CHILDREN'S VEHICLES.

GOODS WIDELY KNOWN

Local Plant Already Turning Out 200 a Day—Spark Plug Manufacture Shows Rapid Growth.

Within the next few weeks Janesville will be known throughout the entire country as the manufacturing center of a brand new, self-propelled vehicle of novel design, for which a brilliant future is predicted. For the last few months activity at the Wisconsin Carriage company has been intense. The new business has purchased outright patents, equipment, stock on hand and all from the Skudder Car company of Chicago. The corporate name of the firm has been changed from the Wisconsin Carriage company to the Janesville Products company, the construction of buggies and sleighs has been stopped, and the plant has been refitted and changed to accommodate the new work.

Though the new car has been in the field but a short time it has met with instant popularity, and as it will be advertised as the feature of the "Janesville Line" it is destined to bring this city into prominence not only in the automobile industry, but already the export trade is building up. The car is similar in appearance to many of the little self-propelled vehicles designed for children, but incorporates a radical change in construction, being propelled through a ratchet gear by a teeter motion given to the footboard by shifting the wheel from one foot to another.

At this time the local plant is turning out two hundred a day, and as soon as further equipment arrives the capacity will be greatly increased. Though the business was taken over but a little over two months ago, already more than 100,000 cars have been made and more machinery can be installed the force will be nearly doubled.

Through the Skudder car is to be the feature of the new line, a number of different models will be manufactured, including a new type of car for very small children. Besides these vehicles the firm will make other toys, chiefly wooden articles, children's furniture, wooden wagons and pushers, and the like.

All of the equipment of the Chicago concern was moved to Janesville when the business was purchased, and installed in the north building of the local plant. As the product is not nearly as large as the buggies and sleighs formerly manufactured by the concern, much less floor space is needed. This has made possible the sale of the south building to the Charles Skudder Manufacturing company of Koshong, who are now installing their machinery for the manufacture of dairy machinery and cooling devices.

Already shipments have been made in carload lots to some of the largest departments stores in the United States, and an order is being filled for a firm in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. A vigorous advertising campaign will be launched shortly, and the firm will be in the front of all of the important weekly and monthly magazines of the country.

That the new concern is one destined to grow is attested by the fact that it is not merely an assembling plant. Every part of the vehicles is manufactured here in Janesville, even to the rubber-tired wheels. The concern is developing tremendously for the last year, and of which the people of Janesville have but a vague conception, is the manufacture of a half plant. For the last year and a half the concern has been operating a plant, the product of which has been marketed under the name of the Gas Motor Efficiency company, located in Janesville. All that the equipment could produce has been sold, and 125,000 units were disposed of during the last fiscal year.

All that the equipment could produce has been sold, and 125,000 units were disposed of during the last fiscal year.

In this part of the work also the operation is carried on at the home plant. The only thing that is complete is the porcelain, the rest of the plug being manufactured from raw materials at this plant. The new concern has been making a big business out of the plug. The plug is made of porcelain, and is used in the automobile industry. The new concern has been making a big business out of the plug. Mrs. John O'Brien of East street is the guest of relatives in Chicago for several days.

The Misses Genevieve and Norma Ryan of South Main street will spend the weekend in Beloit with relatives.

Mr. G. C. Waude of East street was called to Milwaukee a few days ago by the illness of his sister, Mrs. Ray Ogden, who was injured in an automobile accident about a week ago, and who added more mystery to the work of the firebug, who has extended his efforts against the property of Francis C. Grant, and leased for storage by the Janesville Pure Milk company. The structure and contents which was damaged to the extent of approximately $1,500. Wednesday night was again last night, following the first of Wednesday night, the fire chief, in informing the fire department and the blaze was shortly under control with loss and damage of less than $200. It happened about 7:30.

The fire chief, H. C. Klein is certain that the trouble last night was the work of a firebug and he says that the blaze was not the result of smoldering debris left from the first conflagration. At that time there were several heavy streams turned into the building to offset such a possibility. In addition, and to bear out the contention of the fire chief, there were several suspicious conditions discovered.

Like on Wednesday night, the adjoining warehouse of E. W. Lowell was endangered. It was at first believed that this was the building on fire, as heavy smoke poured from every opening and crevice in the building.

The office of the state fire marshal has been notified of the suspicion of incendiaryism of Wednesday night, but up to this morning, as far as was known, no state inspectors or investigators had reached Janesville.

Chief Klein this morning was of the opinion that the loss from the blaze of Wednesday night would probably reach $10,000. Thus, he said, a rough estimate, as the contents in storage were of such varying values that it would be extremely hard to reach definite figures and the loss will be hard one for underwriters to adjust.

Officials of the milk company and F. C. Grant, according to the latter this afternoon, were of the belief that the fire resulted from a spark which had been smoldering since Wednesday night. They did not believe, Mr. Grant said, that the fire had been lit by a firebug.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Whitewater, Aug. 3.—A general store at La Grange Center together with its stock of goods was totally destroyed Thursday evening by fire. Mr. Wilson, the proprietor, had locked up the store and was in the house, when he slipped upon a banana peel and fell, shattering the lighted lamp he held in his hand. The fire started among some excelsior and packing boxes, and in a moment all was ablaze. Nothing was saved from the store and but few pieces of furniture were taken from the house. It is impossible as yet to get an estimate of the loss.

FIRE BUG AGAIN BUSY WITH TORCH AT MILK CO. PLANT

Grant Property Leased By Dairy Concern Suffers Second Fire in Two Nights—Fire Chief Says Incendiary.

Another case of incendiaryism, following the first of Wednesday night, last night added more mystery to the work of the firebug, who has extended his efforts against the property of Francis C. Grant, and leased for storage by the Janesville Pure Milk company. The structure and contents which was damaged to the extent of approximately $1,500. Wednesday night was again last night, following the first of Wednesday night, the fire chief, in informing the fire department and the blaze was shortly under control with loss and damage of less than $200. It happened about 7:30.

The fire chief, H. C. Klein is certain that the trouble last night was the work of a firebug and he says that the blaze was not the result of smoldering debris left from the first conflagration. At that time there were several heavy streams turned into the building to offset such a possibility. In addition, and to bear out the contention of the fire chief, there were several suspicious conditions discovered.

Like on Wednesday night, the adjoining warehouse of E. W. Lowell was endangered. It was at first believed that this was the building on fire, as heavy smoke poured from every opening and crevice in the building.

The office of the state fire marshal has been notified of the suspicion of incendiaryism of Wednesday night, but up to this morning, as far as was known, no state inspectors or investigators had reached Janesville.

Chief Klein this morning was of the opinion that the loss from the blaze of Wednesday night would probably reach $10,000. Thus, he said, a rough estimate, as the contents in storage were of such varying values that it would be extremely hard to reach definite figures and the loss will be hard one for underwriters to adjust.

Officials of the milk company and F. C. Grant, according to the latter this afternoon, were of the belief that the fire resulted from a spark which had been smoldering since Wednesday night. They did not believe, Mr. Grant said, that the fire had been lit by a firebug.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Whitewater, Aug. 3.—A general store at La Grange Center together with its stock of goods was totally destroyed Thursday evening by fire. Mr. Wilson, the proprietor, had locked up the store and was in the house, when he slipped upon a banana peel and fell, shattering the lighted lamp he held in his hand. The fire started among some excelsior and packing boxes, and in a moment all was ablaze. Nothing was saved from the store and but few pieces of furniture were taken from the house. It is impossible as yet to get an estimate of the loss.

SAFE FARMING

BAD SHOCKING CAUSES LOSS

By P. G. HOLDEN.

GRAIN that is annually lost in the United States by reason of bad shocking aggregates an enormous figure. A task, poorly done, is always a source of trouble and loss, and during the present time, when the world needs food more than ever before in its history, careless handling of crops is serious.

The growing of a crop is but one portion of the process of converting the elements from the soil and air into the necessities of life. After the growing must come the harvest, and a slovenly method of harvesting and storing is often the means of reducing the grower's profit, often as much as one-half on a crop that had been well grown. And I refer to the shocking and handling of small grain in all portions of the United States that are blessed with copious rains.

It requires no more labor to set up a shock of wheat or oats in such a way that it will stand against ordinary wind and storm, shed water and go to its stalk move or threshers sound and dry, than it requires to throw bundles together in a so-called shock that will twist and fall down, get soaked in the first rain and stay soaked, sprout and lose value from that day on. Once twisted and spread out of shape by poor shocking, sheaves not only hold water, but no amount of skill can reshock or straighten them or place them in as good condition as they might have been.

Good Shocking Saves the Grain.

As regards the number of sheaves and their particular places in the shock, there are various plans, equally good, for shocking grain, and the following suggestions need not change any plan.

When we set up a round shock we should always keep the center of the shock in mind, and build around it, leaning the sheaves a mere trifle toward the center. The first set of sheaves should be set with a slant toward each other sufficient to brace them firmly, being careful that neither sheaf has all the slant.

So far as possible make one setting down of the sheaves do. With the center of the shock in mind, we should hold the sheaves firmly in hand, set the bundles down in the stubble with force and not lift them again. Repeated tapping or jabbing the butts of the sheaves on the ground makes the ends of the sheaves and breaks down the stubble, while one quick, hard jab runs the stubble up into the sheaves and fits the butt of the sheaf to the ground in such a way as to help support it in an upright position and to brace it against the wind.

In shocking grain on a hillside it is best to set all sheaves so that the long side of the butts will be downhill. This is so easily and quickly done that it requires no particular attention on our part. It is well to keep this in mind when shocking time comes and see how much better the shock stands if the sheaves fit the ground.

When Using Caps.

When caps are used we should always put the heads of the last cap toward the wind. We should put the heads over far enough and put them down so that the wind will blow the cap on tighter, rather than off the shock.

A shock of bundles well bound and well shocked will easily hold up a 175-pound man and not wobble. Try one or two of the first you put up this year.

In building a long shock it is the custom of many of us to set up two center sheaves and then to lean the next two sheaves, on either side, against them, the next two against these, and so on, until the last sheaves are nearly lying flat on the ground.

This is not good practice. The correct way to build up a long shock is to set each pair of sheaves absolutely independent of the others. It is proper to set the sheaves close together, but we should not lean one pair against another pair, if a good shock is desired.

The man at the binder has a great deal to do with shocking. A sleepy-headed man with no mechanical ability is an aggravation, rather than a help on a grain binder.

PLAN HOME GUARD OF 36 COMPANIES

(Special to the Gazette.)

Madison, Wis., Aug. 1.—To acquaint the people with the details of the organization of the new state guard, the state council of defense today gave out a booklet by Adjutant General Henry as follows:

The statute law of Wisconsin authorizes the governor in his discretion to organize, arm and equip a state guard equal in size to that which may have been called into federal service at any time by the United States government. Under this provision, the governor has directed the organization of military companies, assigned in three regiments. About one-half of these companies are already organized and the state, fortunately, has on hand with which to arm them, about 1,500 of the old model Springfield rifles. These are not modern in the sense of the machine guns of today, but very well suited to the purposes of a state or home guard.

While there is a feeling of security on the part of the people in the knowledge that there is within the state a military force actually or potentially under arms, a large measure of this feeling is founded on false premises. The best protection the people have now is that afforded by the civil peace officers. The troops now at Camp Douglas are in the federal service and in case of internal trouble would be unavailable until ordered to act by the department commander. The local officers have power to arrest, and to detain by persuasion, or by force if necessary, from unlawful acts.

The militia when called for guard duty in extraordinary cases, such as fire, flood and strikes, has only military authority. The orders of the members of such local force or guard are to halt trespassers and would-be trespassers, or shoot. It is only when members of such a military organization are deputized by the properly constituted peace officers, that they have power to arrest or to handle situations by other than military means.

Resume of the Week's Program of Moving Pictures

At the Apollo theatre on Sunday, beside the vaudeville, there was a new episode of the Beatrice Fairfax stories of newspaper life. On Monday, House Peters gave a strong delineation of the self-sacrificing man who gives up his dearest hopes to his weaker brother in "The Heir of the Ages." A prologue to the play showed the attitude of the caviar man of primitive times having the same experiences. There were some unique pictures of the chaotic conditions of the world at that time, and also some good mountain scenes. The play given on Tuesday was unsuitable for mixed audience, and would be very embarrassing to many. "Enlighten Your Daughters" gives information which could better be given in some other way. Some parts of it were entirely too suggestive, and would shock a sensitive nature.

It seems as though such plays would have a better moral effect if shown to the sexes separately. On Wednesday, Fannie Ward was seen in a matrimonial tangle of the kind that she portrays so well, in "Strange Evening." In these emotion-roles she is very good, and does some excellent work. On Thursday, a pleasing little play was given, "Money and Mystery," which took up the character of a mining town, and told of the troubles of a man wrongfully accused of theft, and the efforts of his daughter to clear him.

The Majestic had a double bill for Sunday, "The Hatband" and "Sally in a Hurry." The latter featured Lillian Walker as a waitress who was enamored with an English lord and after fleeing him for a schemer for the sake of a shrewd adventure, she succeeds in capturing him. There is plenty of humor in the scenes. As a mid week attraction, Lillian Walker was seen in "Indiscretion," which had to do with the seemingly compromising position in which a young girl was placed by her inexperience, and lack of prudence. Her thoughtless, nearsightedness, which led her into a divorce suit of a married man. Finally all parties concerned became convinced of her sincerity and lack of wrong doing. The new star is seen in Frances Nelson, who takes the part of a young girl whose love is won only to be cast aside. She learns to love a worthy man and becomes his wife. She relives again the agony of her previous experience, when in writing a novel he embodied her story in his pages. The artist is the man who had all but wrecked her life, and he tries to win his old power over her. But she has the "power of decision" and chooses the right road.

The Beverly for Sunday had "Wild Wives' Widow," which was a pretty little southern story, staged at a big country house with scenery and all the surroundings of southern life. A hunt ball, a picnic in the mountains and a wild night's ride over the mountains in a storm, were picture-features. The picture is a picturesque and captures to the stern hand of authority when gentleness does not bring results. Dorothy Dalton was the fair widow and was unusually good in the part. On Tuesday another of the wild western pictures was seen in "The Primal Lure," in which W. S. Hart portrayed the stern and silent man of the desert country in his usual powerful fashion. On Wednesday, Gail Kane was seen in a strong and not particularly pleasing drama, "As Man Made Her." It showed the lure of the gay world, and the power of a bad man as exerted over a young and innocent girl who had no ties of family to restrain her. Even after she had married a good man the evil influence lingered, and it took the almost fatal illness of her child to work her regeneration. Somewhat unwholesome in its tendency, it seemed Jack Gardner in "The Range Boss" on Thursday was a bright and breezy production, with plenty of the atmosphere of the great outdoor country of the west. The story was of a girl who becomes owner of the ranch, with her fiancé and her old aunt and uncle, have numerous adventures, in which the range boss figures largely. A drove of cattle seen on the plains and some picturesque mountain views were shown. The whole was preceded by some fine pictures of "Texas Here and There."

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

Vivian Rich, featured in many subjects, is now appearing opposite Franklin Farnum in a five reel western comedy drama at present known as "The Maverick," being produced by Joseph de Grasse. Miss Rich has taken a vacation of almost a year and officials believe she will be welcomed back to the screen by her many former admirers. Born at sea, Miss Rich spent her younger days in Philadelphia, Boston and New York. When she was still very young she had her first taste of stage life. She specialized in boy parts, to which she was peculiarly suited. She had a straight, well-knit little figure, and big, expressive dark eyes. She was unusually graceful, quick to imitate, but not lacking, either, in originality. While still very young she made her Broadway debut in "The Country Girl." Several other theatrical engagements led to motion picture work.

While not acting before the camera she spends a large share of her time studying music. Swimming, riding, tennis playing and reading take up the remainder of her time.

GISH GIRLS IN LONDON
David W. Griffith, who spent some weeks taking motion pictures in the fighting zone in France, through an arrangement with the French and British governments, is in London taking other scenes that will be combined with the war views to make a big martial photodrama. Recently Mr. Griffith sent a cable to the Gish sisters asking them to join him at once in London, and they are now there posing for the picture. A garden party at which Elizabeth Arden, Lady Paget, the Princess of Monaco, and other prominent women were present was caught by Mr. Griffith's camera and will be incorporated in the film.

Galsworthy's drama, "Justice," has been made into a photoplay by an English company and is being exhibited in London. Gerald Du Maurier acted the role in which John Barrymore was seen when the play was presented last year.

BOY SCOUT BENEFIT AT APOLLO MONDAY

Proceeds Will Go Toward Defraying Expenses of Troop 4 in Delavan Lake Camp.

A benefit for Troop 4 of the Janesville Boy Scouts will be given at the Apollo theatre on Monday evening to raise funds to finance a camping expedition for the troop at Delavan lake. The boys are planning to go into camp next Wednesday. Anne Pennington, "The Little Boy Scout," will be the feature attraction at the theatre, and in addition Victor Moore in a comedy will be shown. Tickets are being sold by the members of the troop. Arrangements for the camp are being completed, although a competent cook is needed. The Rev. F. F. Lewis will be in charge of the camp.

AMUSEMENTS

(Notices furnished by the theatres.)

APOLLO.

Director Francis Grandon, who produced "The Little Boy Scout," Anne Pennington's latest Famous Players-Paramount picture, said in special of it this morning: "This will undoubtedly prove to be one of the most popular productions of the times, for in addition to having Anne Pennington of the Ziegfeld Follies as a star it deals with a subject of great interest at the present time, that is, the boy scouts and their work. Lessons in wigwagging and practical first aid were given by Miss Pennington in fifteen willing line of the company of scouts engaged for support in her picture. The results more than justified our expectations and I am sure will prove a great success." "The Little Boy Scout" will be the attraction at the Apollo theatre on Monday of next week, and a given for the benefit of Scout Troop Four, to enable them to go into camp at Lake Delavan.

Victor Moore will be seen in one of his very funny screen comedies.

FIND TOO MUCH SPEEDING ON ROAD TO MIDDLETON

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Aug. 4.—Since Madison went into the "dry column" the number of speeders on the road to Middleton, the first thirteenth has become so frequent that the district attorney has had to issue an order to regulate the traffic. "These roads are going to be cleared so that safe drivers can operate their cars on the highway without being run over or run into," declared the district attorney.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married woman thirty-five years of age and have four children. I do all my own housework and keep my house neat and clean. I send them to school in winter. I have my moments on time and all ways try to be pleasant to my husband. I do not have any money to spend except when I ask for it and then some times he does not give it to me. A short time ago I did not have clothes to go on the street. I asked my husband for it and he did not give it to me, although I had money in the bank. I borrowed money off his sister and got back when I paid money for a home, which I expect soon. Do you think I did wrong?

My husband wanted me to live on his brother's farm in the house with his sister-in-law. I refused because I thought that I did live there. There would be trouble. I go out on the street only once in a while. If I do not do just what my husband thinks I ought to, he gets angry and does not speak to me for two weeks at a time. I speak to him and he does not answer. If I complain, he tells me to pack my grip. If he wants cigars or anything else, he gets it. If he had not been good to children I should not have stood it this long. What shall I do, get homes for my children and go and work out, or shall I stay and take his abuse?

A TROUBLED MOTHER. If your husband doesn't pay the grocery bills or other bills, you ought to be able, by being economical, to save something out of the money he handles all the money matters.

of the house, you might try to make him help to find a way to not being so nice to him. Have your meals a little off time for a change and act as independent as you can when he is around. When he won't speak to you, don't speak to him for a while, for the sake of the children you ought to try to hold the home together. You probably haven't learned how to manage your husband, and if this doesn't work, we will have to think of something else.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: While away from home this summer I became acquainted with a young man who lives at the place I visited. In two weeks time we became very much devoted to each other. After our trip home his letters came daily, but now I do not hear from him as often, and I am afraid that he is going with some other girl. I would like to know what will bring him back, as I love him very dearly.

ROSE. The more you do in trying to win him back the less likely he will be to come. Try to forget him. Take your time about answering his letters. Perhaps he will come back of his own accord if he thinks you are indifferent.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is it all right for a girl to go with one fellow, and to write letters to another?

(2) Should a young lady go with other fellows when she is engaged and her fiancé objects and she has accepted a diamond ring?

(3) Should a girl who is not engaged to the young man with whom she is going promise him not to go with other fellows? CLARICE.

(1) It is all right unless she is engaged and she should not go with other boys if her fiancé objects.

(2) It would be unwise to make such a promise.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please tell me what will make my hands white and will soften them? C. B.

Make a lotion of one ounce of glycerine to two of bayrum and one of alcohol. Add enough perfume to counteract the odor of carbolio acid. Apply this after washing the hands.

The Business of Living

The Little Filmore Family is Again United, and Joy Reigns.

"There comes the train," exclaimed Aunt Laura, as she heard the whistle. She looked out of the window and saw the train coming up and down on the station platform by her side. You must remember, my dear, that Daddy has been very sick and you must not do anything to trouble him. Aunt Laura, cautioned the train drew up to the station.

There they are, called little Margaret, breaking away from the restraining hands of Aunt Laura and dashing up to her mother who was helping her father get off the train.

"Hello, Daddy's girl," called Doug as he cheerily, and laying a hand on the brown head he stopped and kissed the child who had just come in, and Aunt Laura was waiting Eleanor.

"Well, Douglas," Aunt Laura's voice broke and she extended her hand in silence. "I will bring the boys around," she added, briskly turning to the boys who were waiting for her. "I hitched him around the corner for fear he would be afraid of the engine."

Douglas looked at himself at the door of "Old Jim's" being afraid of anything, but Aunt Laura had disappeared and they soon saw her driving up to the platform. She had come to get in, and they turned away down the white road toward the farm.

"How did you stand the trip?" Aunt Laura looked keenly at her nephew. He certainly looked very pale and thin.

"Splendid," answered Douglas. "I know we stayed all night in our home town. Mr. Barney met us at the station, bringing Jack in his machine, and he took us to Mr. Black's certainly lovely people."

Mr. and Mrs. Black, I never knew how kind they were before," Eleanor had her arms around little Margaret, but the child was looking lovingly into her father's face.

"And we have all of us lived several years during the past six weeks," put in Eleanor.

"These weeks are like a line of stars in a story showing something has been left out," said Douglas.

"I am very glad that pain was omitted from your life," was Eleanor's grave answer.

PENNIES.

A friend of mine, a doctor, has occasion to pass frequently through the poorest section of the city.

One day when he was starting on his rounds he asked the Vagabonds to be good and give him pennies for a dime.

"What's the big idea?" asked the "Doc."

"The kids," said the doctor. "You know the streets down there just swarm with them and I always like to have a supply of pennies on hand. I don't know any way in the world you can get much happiness and you can get much fun cheap as handing out pennies to those kids. Best cure for the blues I know."

One kind of Preparedness. And he went on whistling and rattling the ten pennies in his trouser pockets.

Do you like the doctor's prescription? I do. I've tried it before, but here I'm going to be more systematic. I'm not going to leave having the pennies to chance.

Look back to your own childhood and see what a penny meant to you. It was a little adventure, something that turned a grey day to blue. Can't you remember even at the distance, individual pennies and their history? I can.

"Just because, I suppose, I remember he told me he was a bank cashier and that he danced. He was quite hopeless, of course. Without being what you would call conceited, you could see that the crust was so thick that nothing short of an earthquake would ever break it."

"But the earthquakes do come, once in a blue moon," he said, still smiling at her. "Let's get a straight. You are not trying to tell me that you object to decent clothes and good manners, per se, are you?"

"The colonel was coming out, and he had stopped in the doorway to light a long-stemmed pipe. The young woman got up and said: 'For half with the coils of her fingers—a little gesture which Smith remembered, recalling it from the night of the far-away lawn party.'

"Daddy wants you, and I'll have to vanish," she said; "but I'll answer your question before I go. Types are always hopeless; it's only the hundredth man who isn't. It's a great pity you couldn't go on whipping claim jumpers all the rest of your life, Mr. Smith. Don't you think so? Good night. We'll meet again at breakfast. Daddy isn't going to let you get away short of a night's lodging, I know."

Two chairs for Smith and four pipes for the colonel further along, the tall Missourian rose out of the split-bottomed chair which he had drawn up to face the guest's and rapped the ashes from the bowl of the cornucopia into the palm of his hand.

"I think you've got it all now, Smith, every last crook and turn of it, and I reckon you're tired enough to run away to bed."

Smith took a turn up and down the stone-flagged floor of the parlor with his hands behind him. Truly, the case of Timanyon's ditch was desperate; even more desperate than he had supposed. Plucking at the level-headed back of the former days, he told himself soberly that no man in his senses would touch it with a ten-foot pole. Then the laughing gibes of the hundredth woman—gibes which had cut far deeper than she had imagined—came back to send the blood surging through his veins. It would be worth something to be able to work the intricate the colonel had spoken of; and afterward

Colonel Dexter Baldwin was still tapping his palm absently with the pipe when Smith came back and said abruptly:

"I have decided, colonel. I'll start in with you tomorrow morning, and we'll pull this mired scheme of yours out of the mud, or I'll break a leg trying to. But you mustn't forget what I told you out at the camp. Right in the middle of things I may go rotten on you and drop out."

CHAPTER VIII.

The Sick Project.

Brewster had grown into city-character and importance with the opening of the golf courses in the Gloria district, and the transformation of the surrounding park grounds into cultivated nurseries. A summer hotel on the shore of Lake Tepea—reached only by stage from Brewster—had added its influence; and since the hotel brought people with well-lined pocketbooks, there was a field for the enthusiastic real-estate promoters whose offices filled all the odd corners in the Hopphouse block.

In one of those offices, on the morning following Smith's first dinner at Illerest, a rather caustic colloquy was in progress between the man whose name appeared in gilt lettering on the front windows and one of his unofficial assistants. Crawford Stanton, he of the window name, was a man of many personalities. To summer visitors with money to invest, he was the genial promoter, and if there were suggestions of iron hardness in the sharp jaw and in the smoothly shaven face and flinty eyes, there was also a pleasant reminder of Eastern business methods and alertness in the promoter's manner. But Lanterby, tilting uneasily in the "confidential" chair at the desk-end, knew another and more biting side of Mr. Stanton, as a hired man will.

"Good heaven! do you sit there and tell me that the three of them let that hobo of Williams' push them off the map? And do you say all this happened the day before yesterday; how does it come that you are just now reporting it?"

The hard-faced henchman in the tilting chair made such explanations as he could.

"Boogerfield and his two partners 've been hidin' out somewhere; I allow they was plumb asbamed to come in and tell how they'd let one man run 'em off."

"What do you know about this fellow Smith? Who is he, and where did he come from?"

Lanterby told all that was known of Smith, and had no difficulty in compressing it into a single sentence. Stanton leaned back in his chair and the flinty eyes narrowed thoughtfully.

"There's a lot more to it than that," he said incisively at the end of the reflective pause. Then he added a curt order: "Make it your job to find out."

Lanterby moved uneasily in his insecure seat, but before he could speak, his employer went on again, changing the topic abruptly, but still keeping within the fault-finding boundaries.

"What sort of a screw has gone loose in your deal with the railroad men? Williams got two cars of cement and one of steel the day before yesterday three hours after the stuff came in from the East."

Again Lanterby tried to explain. "Dougherty, the yardmaster, took the back roll I slipped him, all right enough, and promised to help out. But he's scared of Maxwell."

"Maxwell is a thick-headed ass!" exploded the faultfinder. "His entire railroad outfit, from President Brewster down, is lined up on the other side of the fight. But go on with your dickerings. Jerk Dougherty into line. Now go out and find Shaw. I want him, and I want him right now."

The hard-faced man who looked as if he might be a broken-down gambler, unjostled his leg-hold upon the tilted chair and went out; and a few minutes later another of Stanton's pay-roll men drifted in. He was a young fellow with sleepy eyes and cigarette stains on his fingers, and he would have passed for a railroad clerk out of a job, which was what he really was.

"Well," snapped Stanton when the newcomer had taken the chair lately vacated by Lanterby.

"I shadowed the colonel, as you told me to," said the young man. "He went up to Red Butte to see if he couldn't rope in some of the old-timers on his ditch project. He was trying to sell some treasury stock. His one-horse company is about out of money."

Mickle, a clerk in Kinzie's bank, tells me that the ditch company's balance is drawn down to a few thousand dollars, with no more coming in.

"Did the colonel succeed in making a raise in Red Butte?"

"Nary," said the spy nonchalantly. "Drake, the banker up there, was his one best bet; but I got a man I know to give Drake a pointer, and he curled up like a hedgehog when you poke it with a sharp stick."

"That's better. The colonel came back yesterday, didn't he?"

"Yesterday afternoon. His wife and daughter met him, and told him something or other that made him drive up to the door."

"You followed?" queried Stanton.

"Yes, and when I got there the colonel was shut up in Williams' office with a fellow named Smith. When I got a place to listen in they were getting ready to quit, and the colonel was saying: 'That settles it, Smith; you've got to come over into—I didn't catch the name of the place—'and help us.'"

Again the gentleman with the sharp jaw took time for narrow-eyed reflection.

"You'll have to switch over from the colonel to this fellow Smith for the present, Shaw," he decided, at length. "You took him up and do it quick."

The young man glanced up with a faint warning of aversion in his sleepy eyes. "If I must likely run into mouney for expenses," he suggested.

"For graft, you mean," snapped Stanton. Then he had it out with this second subordinate in crisp English. "I'm onto you with both feet, Shaw; every crook and turn of you. More than that, I know why you were fired out of Maxwell's office; you've got sticky fingers. That's all right with me up to a certain point, but beyond that point you get off. Understand?"

Shaw made no answer in direct terms, but if his employer had been watching the heavily-lidded eyes, he might have seen in them the shadow of a thing much more dangerous than plain dishonesty; a passing shadow of the fear that makes for treachery when the sharp need for self-protection arises.

"I'll try to find out about the hobo," he said, with fair enough lip-loyalty, and after he had rolled a fresh cigarette he went away to begin the mining operations which might promise to unearth Smith's record.

It was ten o'clock when Shaw left the real-estate office in the Hopphouse block. Half an hour earlier Smith had come to town with the colonel in the roadster, and the two had shut themselves up in the colonel's private room in the Timanyon Ditch company's town office in the Barker building, which was two squares down the street from the Hopphouse house. Summoned promptly, Martin, the bookkeeper, had brought in his statements and balance sheets, and the new officer, who was 'as yet' without a title, had struck out his plan of campaign.

"Amortization," is the word, colonel," was Smith's prompt verdict after he had gone over Martin's summaries

"Try to Find Out About the Hobo." "The best way to get at it how is to wipe the slate clean and begin over again."

The ranchman president was chuckling slyly.

"Once more you'll have to show me, John," he said. "We folks out here in the hills are not up in the Wall street crinkles."

"You don't know the word? I means to scrap the old machinery to make room for the new," Smith explained. "In modern business it is the process of extinguishing a corporation; closing it up and burying it in another and bigger one, usually. That is what we must do with Timanyon Ditch."

"I'm getting you, a little at a time," said the colonel, taking his first lesson in high finance as a duck takes to the water. Then he added: "If won't take much of a lick to kill off the old company, in the shape it's got into now. How will you work it?"

Smith had the plan at his fingers' ends. With the daring of all the perils had come a fresh access of fighting fitness that made him feel as if he could cope with anything.

"We must close up the company's affairs and then reorganize promptly and, with just as little noise as may be, form another company—which we will call Timanyon's High Line—and let it take over the old outfit, stock liabilities and assets entire. You say your present capital stock is one hundred thousand dollars. This new company that I am speaking of will be capitalized at, say, an even half million. To the present holders of Timanyon Ditch we'll give the new stock for the old, share for share, with a bonus of twenty-five shares of the new stock for every twenty-five shares of the old surrendered and exchanged. This will be practically giving the present shareholders two for one. Will that satisfy them?"

This time Colonel Dexter Baldwin's smile was grim.

"You're just juggling now, John, and you know it. Out here on the woolly edge of things a dollar is just a plain iron dollar, and you can't make it two merely by calling it so."

"Never you mind about that," cut in the new financier. "At two to one for the amortization of the old company we shall still have something like three hundred thousand dollars treasury stock upon which to realize for the new capital needed, and that will be amply sufficient to complete the dam and the ditches and to provide a fighting fund. Now then, tell me this: how near can we come to placing that treasury stock right here in Timanyon Park? It's up to us to keep this thing in the family, so to speak; and the moment we go into other markets we are getting over into the enemy's country. I'm not saying that the money couldn't be raised in New York; but if we should go there, the trust would have an underhold on us, right from the start."

"I see," said the colonel, who was indeed seeing many things that his simple-hearted philosophy had never dreamed of; and then he answered the direct question. "There is plenty of money right here in the Timanyons." Smith nodded. He was getting his second wind now, and the race promised to be a keen joy.

"But they would have to be 'shown,' you think?" he suggested. "All right; we'll proceed to show them. Now we can come down to present necessities. We've got to keep the work going—and speed it up to the limit; we ought to double Williams' force at once—put on a night shift to work by electric light."

Look At The Map!

In each town given on the map there is a livedaily paper—the livedaily paper er.

That paper is waiting to help you sell your goods.

That paper will co-operate with your dealers in its town to the limit; and also see that your dealers co-operate with you.

That paper will help you secure a live dealer if you have none.

That paper carries your message to the most worthwhile people in its town and its surrounding trading territory.

These 29 papers together form the WISCONSIN DAILY LEAGUE and cover the State of Wisconsin like a blanket—133,266 subscribing families or nearly a million readers.

The League will do for you in the State just what the individual papers do in each town.

DO YOU NEED PROOF? THEN READ THIS LETTER:

Wisconsin Savings Loan & Building Association, Milwaukee, Wis., June 29th, 1917.

Wisconsin Daily League, Janesville, Wis.

Gentlemen:

It is with great pleasure that I am signing and forwarding to you the second contract for 1917 advertising in your different papers throughout the state. I wish to state that I am more than pleased, and would go farther by saying I am more than surprised, at the number of inquiries that I have received, and the nice class of business that we have been able to get through your advertising medium.

Thanking you, I am,

Respectfully yours,

J. C. MURTAUGH,

General Agent.

Our rate of $6.43 per inch for two or more insertions—simultaneously—in these 29 papers is low and will bring rich returns for a comparatively small investment.

crowded car. She was asked to show her ticket, and carelessly producing a piece of pasteboard, handed it to the collector."This is a pawn ticket, Miss," said the official, severely."Indeed!" exclaimed the lady, blushing deeply; "I'm sure I don't know.""Oh, it's all right, miss," said the man sitting next to her. "You put your hand into my pocket by mistake."A story is going the rounds concerning the inquiry in London into the best method of checking extravagance in restaurants and hotels, says Among the witnesses before the committee was a certain stolid-looking waiter. The particular article of food under discussion at the moment happened to be margarine, and one of the members asked, incidentally:"How do you call it in the restaurant business—'margarine' or 'mar-jone'?""Neither, sir," blankly replied the waiter; "we call it butter."A clergyman whilst going to church one Sunday morning lost a pocketbook containing valuable papers. After the service he made known his loss, and said that when he over found the pocketbook and restored it to him would be well rewarded.An old man immediately rose up at the back of the church and cried out:

"It's found sir!"

"Oh, thank you, thank you, my man," said the clergyman. "Have you got it with you?""Sir," answered the man, "but I come that way myself after you did, and it wasn't there then."

HAS NARROW ESCAPE

FROM BINDER BLADE

Orfordville, Aug. 3.—Nothing less than a miracle saved the life of the two-year-old girl of Mr. and Mrs. A.
J. Ennis. She was run over with a binder in an oat field across the street from the Keesey residence near the school house on Friday.
The child, who was riding on the O. C. Neas farm by J. F. Ennis of the town of Spring Valley. Older children of the Keesey family were in the field, watching the machine in child fashion and assisting in gathering the bundles for shocking. The first intimation of the presence of the little one by Mr. Ennis was, upon hearing the scream of the child, noting her disappear under the platform of the machine. Upon investigation it was found that the child had been lying on the ground directly in the path of the binder and that the only thing that prevented her from having been cut to pieces was her size.
Several severe cuts were inflicted on her arms and face, but the most dangerous was a great apprehension is causing a diagonal cut across the fore part of the foot near the ankle, which severed the tendons controlling the motion of the toes.
The child was taken to Mercy hospital for treatment with the hope that the use of the foot may be saved.
John and Will Tomlin of Evansville, were in the village on Friday afternoon.
James Mowe has secured a position with Highway Commissioner Moore and is overseeing a section of road that is being built near Spring Valley Corners.
The Borden people have commenced disbanding the last section of the Hesgard warehouse and the condors of the machine will be furnished with the greatest possible speed.
J. F. Ennis has purchased a farm tractor, which arrived on Friday.
Hereafter the heavy carrying on the farm will be furnished by gasoline. Several pieces of machinery especially designed with a view of being connected, have arrived, among them a grain separator.

GAMES SUNDAY.

Cardinals vs. Rockford at 2:30 p. m.
Port Atkinson at Jefferson.
Watertown at Whitewater.

Directors and officers of the Janesville Baseball association are hoping for the biggest crowd of the season at the game at the Driving Park tomorrow afternoon between the Cardinals and the Rockford Maroons. Today they made a plea to every man, woman and child in Janesville who have ever witnessed a game to see this one, and aside from this and the fact that it is a game of interest to a couple more game fans in the matter of attending.

The Cardinals must have better support than they have had previously. Otherwise the caliber of the team must necessarily be lessened.

A victory for Janesville tomorrow means another notch nearer the leaders, and the Cardinals are out to make every step they can. They are the equal of any team in the league today, and Captain "Duckie" Eberts is determined that they will finish the season with a clean record.

Jefferson won the game at Watertown last night, and the Cardinals are looking for a similar result at Rockford tomorrow.

The Cardinals must have better support than they have had previously. Otherwise the caliber of the team must necessarily be lessened.

TO START WORK SOON ON TENNIS COURTS

Work will be started on the new Y. M. C. A. tennis courts at Locust and West Milwaukee streets early next week. About twenty men have already signified their willingness to become members of the tennis club, which is being organized by Secretary C. E. Bearmore.

The courts will be taped instead of ruled and extra large backstops will be erected for the convenience of the players. The courts will be played during the summer months in perfect condition in every detail.

It is arranged to hold a series of tournaments to attract the best single and double players in Janesville, and outside teams will be arranged if sufficient interest is aroused.

The game of tennis has been "asleep" in Janesville since the Y. M. C. A. courts were disbanded. But so many tennis fans have appeared to Mr. Bearmore for a resumption of the game that it was finally decided to reopen the courts.

FEATHER CHAMP IS READY TO RETIRE

Johnny Kilbane.

Following his knock-out a few days ago at the hands of Bennie Leonard, the New York lightweight champion, Johnny Kilbane, feather champ, gave further consideration to his plans for a retirement. Kilbane feels that he gains little by going out of his class and with no competition of his own weight he believes there is little more in the game to interest him.

MORRIS MILLER

The Irish seem to have skidded from the heights of pugilism and baseball, which they dominated in the bygone years.

Cruise, Clark, Rousch, Wagner, Hornsby, Olson, Wheat, Fischer, Gura, Cravath, Rawlings, Chase, Whitted—there you have the ranking batsmen in the Nationals. And Tom Clarke is the only Irish representative in the group. Cobb, Speaker, Rumbler, McInnis, Sisler, Miller, Veach, Chapman, Harris, Heilmann, Jackson, Wambaughs—like topnotchers in the Johnson circuit, with "Stuffy" McInnis the lone Irishman.

Especially since O'Day left have the Cincinnati ball teams written a sorry story into the league records. Tinker finished seventh in 1915 and in 1916. Hezzer dropped the team plump into the cellar. In 1915 the team came out to seventh place, and last year the Reds and Cardinals were tied for seventh or eighth place, whichever you prefer. Both were last. Taking hold of a team which hasn't been higher than seventh in four straight years, Matly is fighting for second place or higher. Is Matly making good? Ask the players. Ask someone in Cincinnati.

With the departure of Elmer Oliphant, who is to join General Pershing's forces in France, West Point loses one of its greatest athletes. In the big "plebe" class, just taking up studies at the West Point institution, is W. T. Vandegrift, last season's captain of the University of Alabama football eleven, for several years All-Southern tackle, and said to be one of the best punters the south ever has developed. He is proficient both in punting and drop kicking. In 1915 he kicked four field goals in one contest.

In Outfielder Sam B. Vick, purchased from Memphis, the Yankees get a player of very limited experience, for this is his first season in the professional ranks. A graduate of Millsaps college, Jackson, Miss., Vick played amateur ball at Batesville and Delta, Miss., for two years before joining the Tennesseeans, for whom he has played right, center and left fields this year.

At Millsaps Vick was a star of the first water, hitting .500 in his freshman year in twenty-four games and going through all those combats without a fielding blunder. Sharpes picked him as the center fielder on the All-Southern team.

Bobby Gilks, who was a player of the Artie Hoffman type thirty years ago, able to play the infield and outfield, and, moreover, pitch, picked Vick out as the classiest outfielder in the Southern Association. When Vick joins the Yankees they will have a trio of graduates from Dixie's strong organization as Tim Hendryx and Elmer Miller both moved up to the American from the Southern.

Vick twice has made four hits in games this year. The first time he turned the trick, was against Mobile on May 17, Wiley pitching, and the second time was against Nashville on June 26, Decatur, Gavett and Scott pitching. Good stunt in the field, the new Yankee was on the morning of July 4, when he captured seven flies in the contest with Little Rock.

SWIMMING MEET FOR ALL BOYS AND GIRLS

Playground Officials Plan Big Inter-Ground Meet to Be Held at the Island Beach.

The annual swimming meet for the boys and girls of the city playgrounds will be held at the island next week. Friday afternoon will be devoted to the holding of the boys' events, while Saturday afternoon will occur the girls' swimming meet. The meet is being held early this year so that the weather will be favorable to swimming.

Entry lists are now being prepared on the four playgrounds. All those who wish to enter the events must sign up at the playgrounds before next Wednesday. Due to the unusual interest in swimming this year the number is expected to be much larger than that of former meets.

The age limits for the boys have been changed. The three classes are now changed will be: Class A—thirteen to sixteen; class B—twelve and under. This change in the ages will hold for the track and field meet, which will be held at the driving park next Wednesday.

The swimming events to be contested are as follows:

Boys, Class A—Breast stroke, back stroke, go-as-you-please, under water swim, and fancy diving.

Boys, Class B—Back stroke, breast stroke, go-as-you-please, under water swim, fancy diving.

Girls, Class C—Breast stroke, go-as-you-please, under water swim, fancy diving.

Girls, Class D—Breast stroke, back stroke, go-as-you-please, under water swim, fancy diving.

The standards in all the swimming events, as well as in the track and field meet, will be posted and kept for future years, and will be used as records until they are broken. In this manner the boys and girls will be urged onward to make better records in all their events. Winners will be awarded the winners of first, second and third places in all events.

Plans for a retirement. Kilbane feels that he gains little by going out of his class and with no competition of his own weight he believes there is little more in the game to interest him.

SIDE LIGHTS on the CIRCUS BUSINESS

By D. W. WATT
Former Manager Burr Robbins and Later Treasurer of Adam Forepaugh Circuses.

The growth of the Showmen's League of America has been so great the last two years that the club rooms which were located in the Saratoga hotel on Dearborn street in Chicago proved much too small for the crowds which naturally congregated there more especially during the winter months.

A short time ago they leased a suite of rooms on the fifth floor of the northeast corner of Monroe and Dearborn street, where they are now located in one of the swiftest club rooms in the city of Chicago and that their last meeting of the board of directors they decided on September the 5th to benefit the Showmen's League.

On that date, every outdoor tent exhibition is supposed to donate a certain amount of their gross receipts for the benefit of the League, this being their conventional benefit. As the membership has been growing much faster than they expected, the receipts of the League are getting well up into the thousands and the business will not be long until their ambition will be realized and the building erected for the benefit of indigent showmen where they can spend their declining years in ease, where their home will be elected is not yet decided upon but in all probability it will be somewhere in or near Chicago, as that seems to be the most central place for showmen.

Here is where thousands of them gather in the fall and spend the greater part of the winter, especially those out of engagement during the winter months.

On a day ago I had a visit with Captain Fred Collyer who for some years has been head trainer for Rhoda Royal, the famous trainer of high school horses and said to me that before Mr. Collyer fell from his horse in New London, Conn., on June 5th, breaking his right arm in five places which has necessitated his retirement from the business for the balance of the summer.

Mr. Collyer is convalescing at the home of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Dixon, in the town of Andover, N. H., where he is certainly in an ideal hospital, surrounded by beautiful shade trees, all kinds of fruit and spring chickens. "Dave," he said, "How can you beat that? I am in a perfect heaven. I told me a story of the arrival of two small elephants direct from the captors in Bombay, India. These elephants, he said, came in heavy iron cages and sent direct to Rhoda Royal and were taken from the ship in Philadelphia early in the spring. Mr. Collyer said they were but little larger than a good sized sheep but wild and as ferocious as a wild service dog, and they had to use many severe methods before they could give them to understand that their new owners were their masters. But today both these little elephants are working in the ring and entertaining the public, and little does the general public think that less than six months ago they were running wild in the jungles of India."

Mr. Collyer at the time of his injury was working eight of the high school horses with the Buffalo Bill and Jess Willard Wildcat Show, and was able to be able to fill an engagement with his horses during the winter in the vaudeville circuit.

After an absence of more than three years of the big show in western waters the Patterson and Gollmar Shows have entered that country and according to a letter written to friends their business has been phenomenal.

The show has now been in Western Canada since June, the playing to generally large business. Most showmen lost owing to bad weather, but it is to be visited later, and there have been some three points, necessary to include to break railway jumps, and they were not profitable aside from this business everywhere has been big. This is perfectly natural when it is considered that during the three preceding seasons Western Canada has been visited by no tent show of any kind. The people were circus hungry and it did one's heart good to see the eight hundred to a thousand automobiles lined up at points which had drawn an amount of their visitors from farms sixty or more miles away.

It is very probable that no show of twenty-five cars has ever in the circus game had such large gross takings. The dollar admission scale in addition, of course, to fifty cents for reserves, which has been obtained at every point, except Winnipeg, Cal., where the admission has been responsible for this. All other changes have been in accordance, such as twenty-five cents for the sideshow, fifteen cents for ice cream cones, etc. The high horses, which however, in many cases were reduced for this particular show, the excessive duty on paper, larger transportation expense have added a few hundred dollars to the daily bill but it is no exaggeration to say that many days the increased takings at the sideshow has cared for this. In the province of Alberta where there is a local amusement tax of five cents on each entrance ticket, collected, however, from the patrons, not the circus. The government supplied their own ticket salesmen, and while the practice is annoying in some respects, the people are accustomed to it and it in no way interfered with business.

Mr. Patterson did not have three weeks booked in Canada. Later this was increased to six weeks and after the show had been in the country for two weeks it was still further added to, until now the stay there will be some two months.

The present tour is positively the last big cleanup there will be in Western Canada, as a majority of the larger towns have since the visit of the Patterson circus passed local legislation making it obligatory to allow not over fifty cents admission in order to get a license.

It is rather difficult to understand why the oldtime circus owners looked the other way and permitted one new to the game to come in and cleanup.

Many people in Janesville and vicinity will be pained to see the cleanup of the beautiful Coop & Lent Circus which exhibited here last year for it went to the wall at Connellsville, Pa.

Three hundred performers and laborers with lions, tigers, elephants, and 110 horses and ponies, were stranded here because the Dixon Amusement company of Dixon, Ill., owners of the Coop & Lent circus went into bankruptcy on motion of the Horne Zoological arena of Kansas City. The South Side Trust company of Pittsburgh was named receiver for the company.

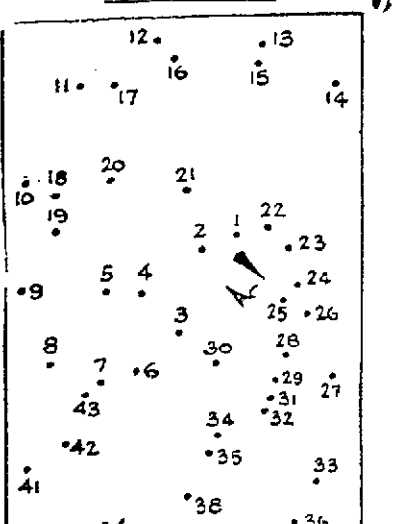

The circus will be advertised and sold here, animals, equipment, tents, harness, wardrobes, and twenty railroad cars going on the block. Many of the performers will sacrifice their back salaries to help out this second cleanup. Some of them are "dead broke," and this is the one sad side to circus life.

And this is the one sad side to circus life.

Talking and Looking Backward.
Bess—Can't you do this as I do it? Slavey—if I could I'd have your job as president of the company and you'd be looking for the one I gave up when I came here.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

First Doctor—Had a couple of rather odd patients this morning. Second Doctor—Indeed! Who were they? First Doctor—One of them was a beekeeper with the hives and the other a grass widow with the hay fever.

COLUMBIA TRAINING ARMY INTERRUPTERS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, Aug. 4.—Expert interrupters by the hundreds are being needed to carry on the business of Uncle Sam's new national army abroad.

Complete courses in military interpretation of foreign languages, approved by Secretary Baker and the war college, are being offered for the summer at Columbia university, where linguists of every variety will be turned out for service during the war. They will enter the army with the rank of sergeant.
